

Why I Trust St. Vincent's

My son's first day at St. Vincent's Special Needs School was on his third birthday. He was just a baby and I struggled with the thought of having to let strangers care for my son. With Sean's special needs I could not imagine how strangers would be able (willing) to truly care for him, plus take care of the other children in the classroom. I feared that my son would be left in a corner to sit and wait for the school day to end. But I could not have been more wrong!

St. Vincent's Special Needs School is a very special place. I do not know that I have the words to reflect the overwhelming gratitude and respect I have for every member of the St. Vincent's team. I am consistently amazed by their level of commitment to our children. They tirelessly strive to find ways to care for, teach and stimulate our children. While giving our children access to the type of equipment, therapy and community outings that the public school system cannot provide.

Sean has been fitted for orthotics, a custom wheelchair and a back brace. He has his own gait trainer and stander in the classroom along with several other devices, which allow for different positioning throughout the day/week. He rides a bike, has access to a kid walker and will now receive aquatic therapy as part of his therapy regimen. In addition, my son has ice-skated (in the arena) with the Sound Tigers hockey team, he has gone horseback riding, gone to local water and amusement parks, along with countless other field trip activities. The experiences St. Vincent's provides for our children are invaluable and cannot be found anywhere else.

I highly recommend St. Vincent's Special Needs School and I am overjoyed that Sean is able to attend this truly remarkable school. I am sincerely amazed by the opportunities the school provides and I'm continuously inspired by the staff and their genuine love for our children. Sean has excelled because of the school environment and the level of care he receives from the St. Vincent's team.

Forever grateful,

Kim Hearn
